That proves nothing and just makes you look more shady and deceptive.

You showed how you got into the red... great.

The mods roll was not putting you in the red, it was putting you in the green, which happened AFTER you were put in the red.

So it is speculated that a mod repped you and put you back into the green after you complained, yet you just showed the events that occurred before that, which proves nothing and makes a very shady company even MORE shady. You are trying to trick people into thinking that you've just proved yourself innocent of their claims of a mod repping you into the green (which to me is obviously true, but even a HUGE deal, just a bit shady). You don't think we know that what you show is only a section of your rep history, and is outdated, from when you were in the red, and before the the event that you are supposedly defending yourself against? SHAMELESS.

Well done, if i had any scrap of respect for syntax it is now gone. Even nectar will not be purchased by me, well done.

We've gathered some interesting information showing what could easily be posting patterns among a large group of aliases. But I'm not going to make any claims or accusations. I want others to take a look and decide with a critical eye what is occurring here.

Piece one, the most compelling:

<img src=http://img.photobucket.com/albums/v155/flat_lux_/thejonny55.gif>

The subject of posting as well as posting patterns among these screen names is strikingly similar. Though I suppose with it being only 5 names, the coincidence is at least somewhat likely.

But what about the following? They seem to have registered in particular groups which wouldn't normally be strange for such a large forum as BB.com. But they are also active in the same threads and topics and tend to agree with one another.

- Adyn joined Dec 12th.*

Hammerhands joined September 20th.
Ironmelter joined September 20th.
Bballstar joined September 20th.*

A simple search of posts by these members will have you seeing that they all tend to support the same subjects. In many cases they appear to gather en masse into the same threads. If indeed these are all aliases of the same person, it's comical to picture this person having a conversation with themselves on a public forum.

If you're asking why this matters, consider first the board rules. It is against rules to have more than one screen name or to have undercover company reps. But more importantly, this is about maintaining the integrity of the information found here. Many have started to question the validity of the info on BB.com because of the prevalence of company reps. It is easy to imagine how that validity could be further warped by secret reps with numerous screen names. That is why I want to get to the bottom of this.

If I'm wrong (and I sorta hope I am), I'll be happy to apologize to the members who might have been wrongly suspected.

The flavoring for Cookies and Cream must be extremely good to cover up the rotten eggs, since "The Matrix has Egg Albumin

I would say try a different brand like Champion Nutrition Pure whey stack, Syntrax is a shady company some of their products have caused the death of people.

A good alternative for real quantity of micellar casein is Ultra Peptide from Xtreme Formulations.

Agreed....but here is a primer on Syntrax just for sh*ts and giggles:

1. They put out a product which elicited hepatitis like symptoms and caused liver failure in multiple subjects which has been documented in few peer reviewed journals.
2. They are notorious for patent infringement which includes lengthy legal battles with both SANN and Molecular Nutrition.
3. Nectar has failed label claims with regards to carb content which was usually 3-4 times higher than actually stated.
4. Their "founder" also has "connections" with Zima Nutrition and Creative Compounds which they do not care to admit due to him being one of the industry's biggest scumbags EVER. He was even dumb enough to have his name as the owner of the Zima domain name which has since been changed
5. It has been proven they flooded this forum with multiple "shills" all using the same proxy server to pimp various products like Swolen.

Shall I continue? ☺

That's the post with a direct link to the USDA's report naming Creative Compounds. Now since the SIO3 Board rep is a liar what makes you think Little John is going to tell you the truth? Take it for what it's worth...they have been proven liars and scum over and over again.

I can't say I didn't warn Little John with all his flaming and taunts.....there is a lot more where that came from. ☺

Who is talking about eating fast food here? This is the same company that put glycoyamine in protien powder without betaine anhydrous. They could give two shits about your health, but as long as the product tastes good hey, that's all that matters.

Frankly, I could careless about this product becuse I don't use it. However, what concerns me is that it contains something questionable and those representing it just brush that aside with poor answers. Perhaps this debate never would have been started had a certain "pink dumbell" comment not been made.

Hey John look at who did the discrediting and far as I'm concerned the only thing worthwhile posted there was that Syntrax was indeed responsible for killing a few people. Congrats on being the first company to be directly attributed to death of a customer. Care to address this:

Quote:

To whom it may concern:

A moderator by the name of "Pogue" has admitted to profiting of the forum by abusing his moderator priviledges. The proof was provided here:

<http://forum.bodybuilding.com/showpo...5&postcount=77>

He admitted to wrong doing here:

<http://forum.bodybuilding.com/showthread.php?t=830430>

Despite admitting wrong doing and correcting his behavior he still has a direct link to his blog which still allows him make money off the forum by promoting Syntrax products. Most of the affiliate links were changed back to bodybuilding.com since this debate was rehashed but not if you check towards the bottom of his actual blog. It is found on the top of the supplement forum stickied here:

<http://forum.bodybuilding.com/showthread.php?t=769390>

Now this may seem harmless but indeed this moderator does not like it when forum members "flame" representatives of Syntrax. He enforces the rules in a biased manner and when called out on it and his past discretions he will threaten banning:

<http://forum.bodybuilding.com/showpo...1&postcount=81>

It also appears representatives of Syntrax directly contact this moderator when they don't approve of posts made about them. He again we see proof and again the moderator admits to profiting off of the forum:

<http://forum.bodybuilding.com/showpo...1&postcount=66>

Now I understand this may seem petty and I am certainly not helping the matter by fanning the fire. However, I feel a strong case has been presented that this Moderator has abused his priviledged access for profit. It is also apparent that given his bias toward Syntrax and the fact they feel comfortable contacting him directly via private e-mail that there is more of a relationship which further motivates biased behaviour.

Had this moderator not selectively enforced the rules since being originally exposed for abuse of power and profit off of the forum I would not be sending this e-mail. However, it is quite evident that when truth is presented on the forum about him he must resort enforcing the rules as he sees fit.

I have moderated a few forums myself and know it's not an easy task. The bodybuilding.com forums are extremely active which amplifies the degree of difficulty. However, rules are rules and if they want to enforce them then they should abide by them as well. Thank you for your time and attention.

As far as USP is concerned nothing has been dispelled. If anything they have been once again exposed for mislabeing, not having a write-up but rather "teasing" everyone with BS, and better yet they are too worried about potential about IP issues hence the reason berberine is not listed as the extract from Phellodendron. Dispell that.....

Now, since you do claim you own patents and are a chemical engineer why is it that you come across as a lacking the necessary intelligence to even see the how USP functions. Is it because you indeed aren't and need that $200.00 a month in free product from Syntrax? Is it because you are so bright you don't even know the difference between the spelling of "loose" and "lose"? Come on John...what is it? It's funny you say you own four patents and rep for company that steals them. I hope all that Spyce and Hyper H are making you HUYOUGE! ☺

Every Chem E I know is making six figures and would rather punch themselves in the nuts then represent a company hated by 99% of the industry for a mere $200.00 a month in product of subpar products at retail costs. You know how I know your compensation? I was offered a repping position too. Dispell that....

Unlike you I don't need free product nor do I have the patience to defend a company 24/7 or troll other competitors who call my company out for being vermin. I actually stand for something and have not sold out to any of the 12 companies who have tried to recruit me. I like being myself and not a mindless drone without a voice. Doesn't it get old defending scum? Fish123 and Zachattack43 figured that out real quick. Perhaps you too will someday get tired having to pimp via PM...that is what Dwanye's directive is right? Dispell that....

Now you call my voice small but for some reason the actual facts say otherwise. It seems my reviews, logs, blog, and bodyspace have generated over a quarter of a million views in the past eight months alone. Probably more views actually then any Syntrax thread, log, etc has received in the past few years combined. Must suck not being allowed in any magazines isn't it? Dispell that.....

That's pretty funny because I'm just a single entity with no funding or capital invested in the industry. As I said before, Syntrax aka Zima aka Creative Compounds will forever be biting at the knees of the companies you like to flame. Thermolife, Designer, and Gaspari are going places you can never imagine due to your jaded perspective and the fact no one wants to have anything to do with you. Dispell that....

Perhaps if you guys spent less time copy Avant and Molecular all the while looking up patents to infringe upon you might be able to shed your snake skin and slither up the mountain to some form of higher actualization. Until then you will be nothing more than a conglomerate of companies claiming victory because you are two steps up on the sales list of a single internet distribution site just like USP while companies like Gaspari and Thermo are reaping the rewards of being in every major publication and mall in the country. Dispell that....

It must suck working for a company owned by a guy who has nothing better to do than walk around an expo with a manilla folder full of deceit. No one wants to touch you with a ten foot poll. So good job on passing out Fyre to a bunch of people on a forum. When Gaspari's and BSN's new fat burners hit the market the only thing remembered about Fyre was that it had a stupid name and had a smart guy like yourself claiming victory for being the 46th best selling product on a single vendor. LOL and dispell that.....

Toodles,

Des

As far as asking questions about your products all I need to do is type "Syntrax" into www.pubmed.com and I get all the answers I need. Look what I get:

For starters, they have a bunch of skills(fake usernames) posting on the forum to promote their products, and at times bash the products of other companies.

We've gathered some interesting information showing what could easily be posting patterns among a large group of aliases. But I'm not going to make any claims or accusations. I want others to take a look and decide with a critical eye what is occurring here.

The subject of posting as well as posting patterns among these screen names is strikingly similar. Though I suppose with it being only 5 names, the coincidence is at least somewhat likely.

But what about the following? They seem to have registered in particular groups which wouldn't normally be strange for such a large forum as BB.com. But they are also active in the same threads and topics and tend to agree with one another.

- AFHC Joined Dec 12th.

A simple search of posts by these members will have you seeing that they all tend to support the same subjects. In many cases they appear to gather en masse into the same threads. If indeed these are all aliases of the same person, it's comical to picture this person having a conversation with themselves on a public forum.

If you're asking why this matters, consider first the board rules. It is against rules to have more than one screen name or to have undercover company reps. But more importantly, this is about maintaining the integrity of the information found here. Many have started to question the validity of the info on BB.com because of the prevalence of company reps. It is easy to imagine how that validity could be further warped by secret reps with numerous screen names. That is why I want to get to the bottom of this.

If I'm wrong (and I sorta hope I am), I'll be happy to apologize to the members who might have been wrongly suspected.

Bitch tits from Sesamin

^^^^Here is a prime example of what I cannot stand about the shilling. The starter of the "Bitch tits from sesamin" thread, otter2u, is an obvious Syntrax shill. Not only is he on Aetern's list, but you can simply take a look at some of the posts he's made and threads he's started and see that.

<http://forum.bodybuilding.com/search.php?s=archid=9149141>

It's not enough for Syntrax to just use the shills to promote their products. They will even go the extreme of attempting to spread false panic about ingredients they do not use in their products.

Well you did rep for IBE before this, just jumping from one shoddy company to another, but lets not go there.....

And yes, you continue to rep, I have great confidence that you can be a great asset to Syntrax, after all, with the ratio of shill posters, they need quite a more actual reps to create some balance, deflect all the negativity that 1-5 post members creating "WOW, NECTAR, OMG OMG OMG" threads have created here over the past few years.

Yes, I've noticed the same thing regarding Clayton. There are quite a few shills around here, Syntrax and CMI are two of the companies that come to mind most often.

You are probably the biggest shill on these message boards, if not, then you are definitely in the running for the Top 5, and you have the nerve to go and attack people for calling you and your company (why would Syntrax ever hire you as a rep...OH YEAH....big shill...n/m) as the bogus rip-off artists that they are. Syntrax gets picked on because this crap is par for the course, they steal things from other companies and then don't have at least the cajones to admit it.

I'd respect them a lot more if they came out and said "YEA, we ripped off their patent, watcha gonna do it about it?????" Instead they run around all day and play games, attacking members or the particular company that they work for. In this thread, your company has directly ignored customer questions, and has basically flipped out on people, launching into ad hominem attacks that have absolutely nothing to do with the issue itself.

"Your comments aren't valid.....you...you WORK FOR THERMOLIFE!"

*shivers* *PHEAR* It would be one thing if this was just an issue with Thermolife but there's a large amount of people like myself who aren't related to any company whatsoever and we can smell the BS your company is cooking up from a mile away.

Don't bother responding, I don't want to hear the lame "YOU ARE BUT WHAT I AM" 2nd grade-level playground mentality name-calling that Syntrax is known to pull out of their playbook when they are not out busily shilling the neighborhood with their 101 1-post posters going "LOL OMYGOSH....NEKTAR IS DA SHIZZNIT" "I LOVE DAT DERE ADONIS"

Oh my bad, the X-Factor that you guys ripped off from Molecular Nutrition is now going by the name...Hyper-H, I'm sorry, wouldn't want to confuse people.

There are ways to rig the polls if someone really wants to go through all the trouble. Obviously someone related to Syntrax cares enough to add in an extra 18 or 19 votes and quite a lot more in the last one, when there was no way to publicly tell just how many REAL users actually voted.

Quote:

This poll is no different than all the others, it proves that anyone that likes a company or product that YOU dont approve of is either a liar, shill, affilliate of syntrax or a liar. How can we win if thats the attitude?

Yes, its just a coincidence that everyone who voted for Fyre is

- A. A Syntrax rep
- B. Received free product from Syntrax
- C. A user with less than 10 posts

With the way the numbers were skewed in the last poll, and the way they are skewed now, with almost 20 "mystery" votes, it really doesn't shock me at all anymore. This is par for the course for Syntrax and its lack of overall integrity and professionalism.

Quote:

Again, thats so very nice of you but yet i fail to understand why you try to discredit syntrax... does it piss you off that FYRE was the #2 top seller?

I really don't care what it sells, that is meaningless to me. Lots of crap products seem to sell well too. But considering that Syntrax's last fatburner made a whole bunch of people sick and put them in the hospital, I'd be very wary of buying any such products from them.

Quote:

that has to be the most idiotic thing you have posted thus far. You see the same thing over and over because Syntrax makes damn good stuff and it pisses you off that people love the products and speak highly of them. Sounds like someone is pissed and pouting now.

Not at all, I'm just pissed off at the tactics used by your company. I have no such problems with other reputable companies that don't need to create false user accounts and push their products in the shadiest of manners. It isn't even about the products as much as it is about the company and their behavior on these boards overall.

I know that Syntrax is more focused on hiring people that are the most productive at shilling products, launching ad hominen attacks, and perhaps not so much on the mental intelligence, reading comprehension areas, but go back and try again, I have full faith that you can understand what was written.

Now before you run off trying to find some magical BS info, keep in mind that SIO3 owns Syntrax and the name... there is no affiliation with things of the past. Dig all you want, but if youre gonna take what 1 or 2 people did, regardless of the compant they work for, stand in the way, then you are truely a lonely man.*

I can tell, this is over your head, try not too worry to much, if it gets worse, take an aspirin, a few swigs of rum, and you'll be good to go.

And like I said, the name is slightly modified, but its still the same company, the same practices, and the same predictable shady behavior.

Ah, you are so sweet. Looking out for people that want to try qulaity supplements that work. What a guy. I personally have no clue who the heck this jonnyquest is, must have been before i became a rep. Tell ya what, instead of attacking all the reps and the company itself, why not take that same energy and BS finder you have and go use it on the rep or reps that do what you claim?

Tell you what, this is what we'll do

- A. You continue to rep for a BS company(Apparently you have a long history of such activity)
- B. I continue to expose BS companies, such as the one you rep for.

Surely thats reasonable and easy to understand.

Count the votes again. There's about 40 votes for Fyre, BUT ONLY 20 names listed, which is still a better margin than you see out of Syntrax normally.

You get it now, or do I have to break it down for you further?????

Quote:

You cant be serious. That is crazy. tell ya what, start yet ANOTHER poll and we all can vote for the fat burner of your choice, hows that? make you feel better?

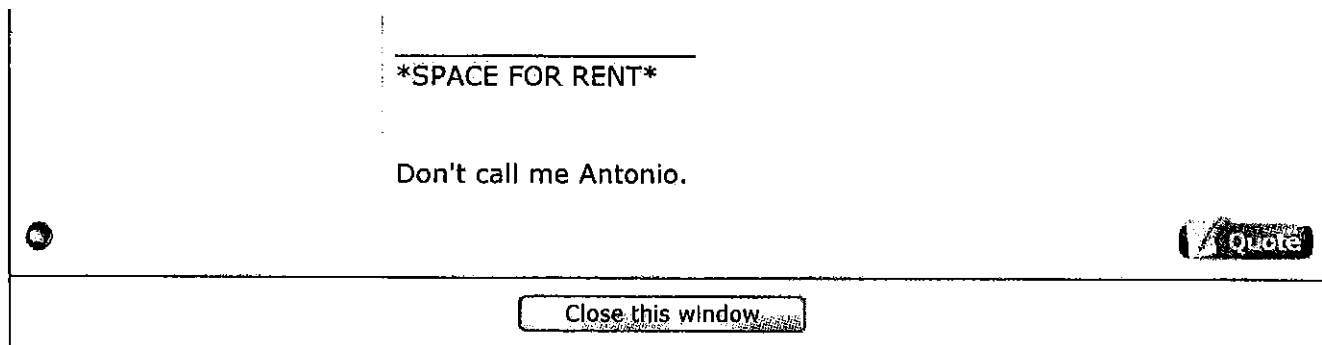

No, these last two polls do a fine job of showing what a shady company Syntrax really is, but thanks for the offer.

Quote:

It isnt your JOB to do that, if it were then i could understand you doing so. But to assume SI03 is shotty makes you a bigger idiot than i thought. SI03 had NOTHING to do with all that mess youre pissing out that mouth of yours. SI03 purchased Syntrax and the name, this product you speak of, (sadly i have no info on the subject, it was before my time,) was removed and SI03 stepped in. The company has done nothing but set the bar ever since. BUT tools like you "think" they know whats going on, use anything and everything they can to try and discredit a company. It wont work my man.

My job? To keep people from purchasing products from companies that use such shady and BS tactics? No, its not my job, but I'd like to think of it as a minor hobby, exposing companies that do crap like this, there's been more than a few lately, but this is the one I still seeing doing the same nonsense, time and time again, with impunity.

"Set the bar?" huh. All I see is the same old/same old. Same tactics, same skills, the only thing has changed is the name slightly, but you just can't force a zebra to change its stripes apparently.

The best products in the industry???? Perhaps some of the most overrated products, hardly the best, but I'm sure you're mainly talking about Syntrax here, or whatever lame shell company you've invented now to pass off your third-rate and health-damaging products.

What patents? They don't have the ability to come up with their own, they only rip them off from companies like Molecular.
